more than a remote possibility that rebellion will break out in China, headed either by the notorious Ko-lao Hui or by some of the other numerous secret societies of China and that we shall again see something akin to the Taiping Rebellion. In that event would the reigning dynasty again receive outside assistance to preserve it from destruction? It is more than likely that the empire would be allowed to fall to pieces and that a number of small Kingdom's would spring up in its place, after the European Powers interested had taken what they wanted. In any case, the demonstration China has made of her weakness will not be lost on Russia in the North and France in the South. At present China appears very sick, and it can hardly be said that her dissolution would evoke much regret.

On the 15th Murch last the Hon T.
